Kinds of Managers by Level

• Top Managers
  – The relatively small group of executives who manage the overall organization. They create the organization’s goals, overall strategy, and operating policies.

• Middle Managers
  – Largest group of managers in organizations who are primarily responsible for implementing the policies and plans of top managers. They also supervise and coordinate the activities of lower level managers.

• First-Line Managers
  – Managers who supervise and coordinate the activities of operating employees.
Kinds of Managers by Area

• Marketing Managers
  – Work in areas related to getting consumers and clients to buy the organization’s products or services—new product development, promotion, and distribution.

• Financial Managers
  – Deal primarily with an organization’s financial resources—accounting, cash management, and investments.

• Operations Managers
  – Concerned with creating and managing the systems that create organization’s products and services—production control, inventory, quality control, plant layout, site selection.
Kinds of Managers by Area (cont’d)

• Human Resource Managers
  - Involved in human resource planning, recruiting and selecting employees, training and development, designing compensation and benefit systems, formulating performance appraisal systems, and discharging low-performing employees.

• Administrative Managers
  - Generalists who are familiar with all functional areas of management and who are not associated with any particular management specialty.

• Other Kinds of Managers
  - Organizations have developed specialized managerial positions (e.g., public relations managers) directly related to the needs of the organization.
