

Department of Computer Science & Engineering

Course Name : Art of Living

Course Code : GED131

Assignment no. 02

Submitted by:

Student's Name: Jarif Rahman

DIU ID: 212-15-4118

Section: PC-B

Manipulation of education

Since the purpose of both education and philosophy is to acquire knowledge, and the means of acquiring both is study, the two are inextricably linked.

One of the first things he said in his address, Respected Salimullah Sir, was that a true friend may only be identified in times of difficulty. Today, when the world is in a huge crisis, it is only when we realize how sophisticated our educational and social systems are, as well as where the weaknesses in our educational systems are, that we will be able to help the world. Philosophy is a practical teaching method that enables a teacher to reach the full potential of his or her students. In his lecture, Salimullah Sir stated that when a teacher teaches his students, the education should be basic education, which includes hand-to-hand or inner education. In response to a question about the education system in Bangladesh, he stated that there is a shortage of instructors since a teacher can only reach perfection by teaching his education through philosophy and practice.

He talked about emphasizing the value of the original language, or teaching in the mother tongue. He emphasized the value of indigenous languages in the classroom. He highlighted the importance of history in philosophy. By stressing their own education, i.e. their own language education, the world's developed and major nations have come to be known as civilized and developed nations. There is no substitute for mother tongue when it comes to increasing the quantity and quality of education, especially at the basic, intermediate, and higher secondary levels.